

Bioaccessibility

This term refers to the fraction of the total amount of a substance that is potentially available for absorption. In this study, laboratory methods were used to extract these bioaccessible portions from the soils. Bioaccessibility is therefore used to help predict bioavailability.